WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Warmer and drier weather is expected through Thursday as high pressure builds over Northern California. A frontal system is expected to bring cooler temperatures and a chance of rain for the weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

High pressure will build over California this week and bring much warmer conditions today through Thursday. Cooling is expected late in the week as high pressure breaks down and onshore flow returns.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

Significant warming will take place across the region over the next couple of days as strong high pressure builds. High temperatures will warm to around 15 degrees above normal and near record highs for Wednesday and Thursday. A cool-down is expected by the weekend.

Hanford Weather:

High pressure will remain over the region for the next several days bringing mostly clear skies and a day to day warming trend for the duration of the week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure aloft and gusty Santa Ana winds at times through Thursday will bring hot and dry weather to the forecast area. It will remain very warm on Friday but winds will weaken. Significant cooling is expected over the weekend with a return of night through morning low clouds and fog to coastal areas. Further cooling is expected Monday as a trough of low pressure approaches.

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Through Friday, high pressure aloft near the West Coast and offshore flow will bring much warmer temperatures from the western valleys to the coast. The offshore flow will also bring periods of strong gusty northeast winds near the coastal mountain slopes and adjacent inland areas through Wednesday with moderate strength and less widespread winds for Thursday. Weak onshore flow will return late Friday and strengthen through Tuesday. This will bring a cooling trend with gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts. The marine layer will return and slowly deepen with areas of night and morning coastal low clouds and fog.

Southeast California Weather:

High pressure will gradually build over the western United States this week resulting in warm dry weather through Southeast California. Windy conditions can be expected at times through Thursday, especially over the Colorado River Valley and parts of Southeast California. Temperatures will gradually increase to well above normal levels by the end of the week with highs peaking in the upper 90s to around 100 on the lower deserts.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

On April 25, 2014 Governor Brown released an Executive Order on Friday enabling several urgent actions to be taken as the drought persists into the state's traditional dry season.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

Near-term Outlook for Precipitation: Warmer weather will occur across the state this week with no expected precipitation.

** It is possible that last week's storms will be the last storms of the state's traditional rainy season. As this rainy season comes to an end, it is highly unlikely that precipitation totals will increase significantly over the coming months. This winter's below average rain and snowfall worsens conditions in this third straight dry year.**

Situational Summary (Cont.)

Information as of 4/28/14

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The most recent snowpack survey, conducted on April 1, recorded California snowpack at 32% of normal. A more recent update using automated devices shows snowpack at 21% of normal as of April 27.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project in spite of the zero allocation policy. Deliveries will be boosted if storms produce enough rain and snow to increase reservoir storage and the snow pack.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
